PREMIERS HOLD CONFERENCE TODAY

Paris, July 27.—Premier Millerand, accompanied by Marshal Foch, Frederic Francois-Marsal, Minister of Finance and Philippe Berthelot, political director of the foreign office, left at 8 o'clock this morning for Boulogne, where he will discuss with Premier Lloyd George, the Russian Soviet proposal for a conference between the allies and representatives of the Russian Soviet government.

It is reported that Premier Millerand, sounded by the British government upon the question, gave as preliminary conditions as to entering negotiations, with the Russians the acknowledgment by the Soviet of international engagements of former Russian governments and confidence by the Russian people of the Soviet authority.

The probability is also expressed that M. Millerand will refuse to agree to the request in the Russian note for the surrender of General Wrangel, the anti-Bolshevik leader in southern Russia, and that he will ask the United States to participate in the London conference if it is held.

RECEPTION FOR GOVERNOR COOLIDGE

North Hampton, July 27.—Governor Calvin Coolidge was formally notified today of his nomination as the Republican candidate for vice president in exercises which began with a meeting of the notification committee and an informal luncheon for the committeemen at the Coolidge home at noon, and concluded with the ceremonies of notification at 3 p. m. on the Allen fields, Smith College.

This little college town was decorated with the national colors, and pictures of the Governor were everywhere displayed.

All business was suspended during the afternoon, and the city was crowded with visitors from the adjoining "hill town" section of Massachusetts. Special trains brought delegations from Boston and neighboring states. Scores of influential leaders of the party also were here.

In a great law case, the house of lords has just rejected the claim put up by the crown that the government has the right, by prerogative, to take a man's property, use it for an indefinite period and pay nothing.

FIGHTING THE INSECT PESTS

Suggestions From the Entomologist About Combating Boll Weevils, Scales, Twig Girdlers, Stored Grain Insects, etc.

Clemson College, July 26.—The farmers of South Carolina have come face to face with the boll weevil problem and never before has it been necessary for them to do as careful planning during the winter as it is now. The boll weevil injury is directly dependent upon the weather conditions. If the season is moist and favorable for weevil development, very serious damage is expected in the southern part of the state approximately below a line extending from Augusta to Charleston, but severe damage may also be expected in the Coastal counties between Charleston and the North Carolina line if the season is wet.

One of the most important habits that we must form in general farm management is to practice farm cleaning during the fall and winter because most of our insect pests, including the boll weevil, find winter shelter in the dead leaves and grass, and along ditch banks, fence rows, wood lots, old orchards and roadsides. Several of our most serious pests find winter-quarters in and around the cotton and corn stalks during the winter. If for any reason these stalks have not been properly cleaned up by plowing under, burning, or otherwise by December first, it should be done immediately; and if any remain by January first, they should not be allowed to stay one day longer. In the dead grass, along wood lots, under bark, and around stumps that are left in the field millions of field crop insect pests winter successfully. Therefore, a farmer should never fail to look upon the stumps in the field as a winter hotel for the accommodation of farm pests.

The Shot Hole Borer.

In many of the orchards at this season of the year there are trees that have the bark full of small holes the size of a number eight shot. These holes are made by the shot hole borer or fruit bark beetle, and as this pest stays in the bark during the winter in the grub stage, it is now the proper time of the year to give it very close attention. A tree infested with shot hole borers is not to be regarded as a sound tree. In most cases it has been weakened by peach tree borer in the crown, or scale on the bark, or both, and when a tree is thus weakened it becomes an ideal breeding ground for the shot hole borer. Prune the tree back thoroughly and cut out all badly infested branches; but if you do not intend to burn this material immediately, then you might as well leave it or the tree. Burn all pruned material and do not let it lie in the orchard.

Control Of Scales.

The lime-sulphur wash, one of the insecticides used for the control of scale, may be purchased in the market or it may be made at home preferably by means of a steam boiler. It can also be made by the use of a large iron kettle, provided the correct formula is used and directions followed closely. For information as to where the material can be obtained write to the Extension Service. Those desiring to make the material at home by one method or the other can get full information by writing for Circular 30, South Carolina Experiment Station.

Two of the most generally injurious scales infesting the shade trees of our state are the gloomy scale and the cottony maple scale. They infest principally our sugar and silver maple trees. In the experimental work at this College lime-sulphur wash has not been found a satisfactory control for either of these, but both species can be very satisfactorily controlled by the application of one of the commercial spray oils, properly mixed and properly applied. Ask for information concerning this method of treatment so that every possible mistake can be avoided in obtaining the oil, in making correct mixtures, in making the separation test and the proper method of application.

Pecan Twig Girdlers.

During December and January one should not forget to take a good look at the pecan trees. There will be found twigs that were girdled off by the pecan twig girdler. Inside of these fallen twigs are the eggs and larvae of the insect. Because the mother beetle girdles the limbs between the point where the eggs were laid and the tree. These twigs as well as the girdled limbs lying under hickory trees in the neighborhood should be gathered and burned.

Stored Grain Pests.

During the winter is the time to give the proper treatment to our stored products to prevent injury by the granary pests. Year after year we realize more fully the great importance of conserving our harvest from the granary pests, including rats and mice. More and more it is realized that we must have better constructed granaries that will admit of fumigation. When the granary construction is properly done, fumigation is very simple and very effective as well as inexpensive. Carbon bisulphide, which is the proper fumigant, is obtained in the market at this time at a price comparatively much more reasonable than most of our other commercial products. For full information in regard to the fumigation of granaries, store houses, etc., write for press bulletin 131, Extension Service, Clemson College, S. C.
